

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

DPCC Newsletter

Stay Updated on DPCC Activities

Welcome

The DPCC Executive Board is excited to connect with you through our newsletter and in person at the ASC Annual Meeting in San Francisco. We remain committed to advancing social justice and inclusivity within criminology. This newsletter will keep you updated on division activities, events, and opportunities to engage.

As we approach DPCC's 30th anniversary in 2025, we need your input to make the celebration truly special. Consider joining the planning committee or sharing your ideas to help honor our past and envision our future.

We also welcome your contributions to the newsletter—share your news, job postings, or publications through our submission form.

Thank you for your continued support.

Newsletter Highlights

- Chair Reflections
- #ASCSanFran24
- DPCC Award Recipients
- Member Accomplishments
- Race and Justice Journal
- Resources
- Position Announcements
- Annual Meeting Checklist

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

Chair Reflections

As we prepare for the ASC Annual Meeting, I am reminded of the importance of expressing gratitude—gratitude for the scholars of color who have paved the way for us in the discipline - of criminal justice and criminology - and appreciation for those who saw fit to start the Division on People of Color and Crime (DPCC) nearly three decades ago. Our journey has been shaped by individuals who dared to challenge the status quo and envisioned a space within ASC where the voices and concerns of people of color would be front and center.

In 2025, we will celebrate the DPCC's 30th Anniversary—a significant milestone that marks years of impactful work. DPCC's Anniversary offers us an opportunity to celebrate our achievements and to chart our future course. Whether through research, community engagement, or teaching, DPCC members have consistently pushed boundaries to ensure that issues related to race and justice are heard and included in the larger ASC agenda.

Your involvement is necessary to make this celebration a true reflection of the DPCC community. Please consider joining our planning committee or sharing your thoughts on how we can honor this incredible legacy and inspire future generations of scholars, practitioners, policymakers, advocates, scholar-activists, and others. Find more info here: DPCC 30th Anniversary.

This year's ASC Annual Meeting theme is "Criminological Research and Education Matters: People, Policy, and Practice in Tumultuous Times." As we gather to exchange knowledge and ideas, the DPCC Executive Board wishes everyone a productive and stimulating conference—may your presentations, roundtables, workshops, posters, book talks, and other sessions be rewarding. May you enjoy reconnecting with peers and colleagues and form new connections. May you feel seen, heard, and valued.

Lastly, I'd like to take a moment to highlight our DPCC Luncheon speaker, Paul Briley, Executive Director of Legal Services for Prisoners with Children (LSPC). Paul's work is rooted in transformative justice, and his advocacy for marginalized communities and dismantling harmful policies such as, restoring voting rights to 50,000 individuals on parole in California and making San Francisco the first city in the nation to provide free jail phone calls and end the commissary markup, exemplifies the spirit of the DPCC mission. We are excited to learn from his experiences and insights. You can find more about Paul on page 4.

We look forward to seeing you all at the luncheon as we learn more about the work of Paul and LSPC and honor our DPCC award recipients (pages 7-8).

Remember to "protect your peace" post-election season - our work is far from over.

Sincerely,
Shenique

Shenique S. Thomas-Davis, Ph.D.
DPCC Chair
Associate Professor
City University of New York (CUNY)
Borough of Manhattan
Community College

Here's how you can get involved:

Help shape our 30th-anniversary celebration.
Join the planning committee and share your ideas for a memorable event, here.

Connect with the DPCC community.
Visit our table at the ASC Annual Meeting. Network with fellow members and contribute to our collective mission.

Have photos from previous ASC meetings that we can highlight at the 2024 DPCC Luncheon?

We'd love to feature them! Send us your photos so we can showcase our DPCC moments during the luncheon.

Email: ASCDPCC95@gmail.com

DPCC Executive Board
2023 ASC Annual Meeting
Philadelphia

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

#ASCSanFran24

Meet Us in San Fran!

Criminological Research and Education Matters: People, Policy, and Practice in Tumultuous Times

DPCC General Business Meeting

Thu, Nov 14, 11:00am to 12:20pm, Golden Gate C2 - B2 Level

DPCC Luncheon and Awards Reception

Thu, Nov 14, 12:30 to 1:50pm

Fang Restaurant, 660 Howard Street, San Francisco, CA 94105

Race and Justice Presents: How to be an Effective Reviewer

Thu, Nov 14, 2:00 to 3:20pm, Foothill G1 - 2nd Level

Roundtable: Elevating Our Stories: Narratives of Black and Brown Scholars in Academia [Act ii]

Fri, Nov 15, 2:00 to 3:20pm, Salon 7 - Lower B2 Level - Area 1

Roundtable: The Continuing Significance of Race in Criminal Justice System Processing: Police, Courts, Corrections and Beyond

Fri, Nov 15, 3:30 to 4:50pm, Salon 7 - Lower B2 Level - Area 2

#ASCSanFran24

#ASCriminology2024

DPCC Table

Would you like to feature your published book at the DPCC Table during the #ASCSanFran? Let us help showcase your work.

- Bring your book to ASC!
- Contact us at ascdpcc95@gmail.com

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

#ASCSanFran24

Meet Us in San Fran!

DPCC Luncheon and Awards Reception Speaker

Paul Briley is the Executive Director of Legal Services for Prisoners with Children (LSPC), where he focuses on reforming fines and fees that disproportionately burden formerly incarcerated individuals, particularly those from low-income and marginalized communities. Growing up in San Francisco's Bayview-Hunters Point and navigating the foster care system, Paul's early experiences shaped his commitment to social justice and policy change. After aging out of foster care, he became involved in Project Rebound and Berkeley Underground Scholars, using his lived experience as a catalyst for advocating system-impacted students in higher education.

In 2019, Paul became a Ronald Elder Freeman Policy Fellow with All of Us or None, where he was trained as a community organizer and policy advocate. He helped draft ACA 6, restoring voting rights to 50,000 individuals on parole in California, and led the successful People Over Profits campaign, making San Francisco the first city in the nation to provide free jail phone calls and end the commissary markup. Paul's ongoing work seeks to dismantle harmful policies and create pathways for meaningful change within impacted communities.

Paul Briley
Executive Director, Legal Services for Prisoners with Children

#ASCSanFran24

#ASCriminology2024

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

#ASCsanFran24

Meet Us in San Fran!

Register: HERE

BLACRI PRESENTS:

BLACK@ASC

ALLIES WELCOME | WHEELCHAIR ACCESSIBLE

The Foundry
1425 Folsom Street
San Francisco, CA 94103
7 pm -11pm

NETWORKING | FOOD | MUSIC

THURSDAY | 14 | NOVEMBER 2024

please REGISTER for the event

Sponsored by:

UCI Department of Criminology, Law & Society
UCI Office of Inclusive Excellence
ASC Executive Board
ASC Division of People of Color & Crime

DPCC Award Recipients

Celebrating Excellence in Race, Crime, and Justice

We are excited to announce the recipients of the 2024 DPCC Awards! Thank you to everyone who submitted nominations and helped recognize the outstanding work in our field.

We encourage all members to consider applying or nominating deserving individuals for next year's awards. Let's continue to celebrate and support excellence in research, community service, teaching, and advocacy within the discipline of criminology and criminal justice.

We would like to extend a special thank you to Dr. Popy Begum (Saint Louis University) and Dr. Javier Ramos (Sam Houston State University) for their significant contributions in supporting the DPCC Award Committee, chaired by Dr. LaDonna Long (Roosevelt University).

DPCC Awards

- Lifetime Achievement Award
- Coramae Richey Mann Award
- Julius Debro Award
- New Scholar Award
- Norman White Outstanding Student Paper Award
- Community Service Award
- Teaching Award
- Helen Taylor Greene and Vernetta D. Young Graduate Fellowship for the Study of Race and Crime
- Media and Public Scholarship \(MPS\) Fellowship

DPCC Award Recipients

Elsa Chen, M.P.P., Ph.D.
Lifetime Achievement

Dr. Elsa Chen, Professor and Chair of Political Science at Santa Clara University, is the recipient of the DPCC Lifetime Achievement Award. Her work focuses on criminal justice reform, reentry, and racial disparities in sentencing, and she has co-edited Beyond Recidivism and contributed to journals such as Justice Quarterly and Law & Policy.

Everette B. Penn, Ph.D.
Community Service

Dr. Everette B. Penn, recipient of the Community Service Award, is the Co-Founder and Executive Director of the Teen And Police Service (TAPS) Academy. Since 2011, TAPS Academy has worked nationwide to build relationships between disenfranchised youth and police, reduce social distance, teach crime prevention, and enhance school safety.

Francis D. Boateng, Ph.D.
Coramae Richey Mann

Dr. Francis D. Boateng is an associate professor at the University of Mississippi and recipient of the Coramae Richey Mann Award. He has 12 years of research experience in policing, victimology, terrorism, and immigration, and has advised police departments and criminal justice agencies.

Janice Iwama, Ph.D.
Julius Debro

Dr. Janice Iwama, Associate Professor at American University, is the recipient of the Julius Debro Award. Her research focuses on race, ethnicity, immigration, and crime, with work published in journals such as Justice Quarterly and Criminology & Public Policy.

Chris Guerra, Ph.D.
New Scholar

Dr. Chris Guerra, recipient of the New Scholar Award, is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Criminal Justice and Security Studies at The University of Texas at El Paso. His research focuses on the relationship between immigrant experiences and adverse outcomes, particularly among Latina/o immigrants, and has been published in journals such as Ethnic and Racial Studies and Journal of Crime and Justice.

Godwin Egbe
Norman White Student Paper

Godwin Egbe, recipient of the Norman White Student Paper Award, is a Doctoral Researcher in the Department of Criminal Justice and Legal Studies at the University of Mississippi. His research focuses on terrorism, cybercrime, policing, and youth violence, with an emphasis on the impact of transnational organized crime on marginalized communities.

Helen Taylor Greene and Vernetta D. Young Graduate Fellowship

Carl Reeds
Greene and Young Fellow

Carl Reeds, recipient of the Helen Taylor Greene and Vernetta D. Young Graduate Fellowship, is a Ph.D. student in Criminology at the University of South Florida. His research investigates prosecutorial discretion, focusing on the impact of the suspension of progressive prosecutor Andrew Warren, aiming to contribute to discussions on prosecutorial philosophy and political influence on legal institutions.

If you wish to make a donation to support the DPCC's Helen Taylor Greene and Vernetta D. Young Graduate Fellowship for the Study of Race and Crime, see ASC's Donations page, here:
<https://asc41.org/about-asc/donations/>

This fellowship was established in 2018 and supports original research, program or service development, implementation, evaluation, or advocacy, and is named in honor of two longstanding DPCC mentors who have provided support and mentorship to many generations of graduate students.

THANK YOU to those who have contributed!! We appreciate your support of our student members!!

Member Accomplishments

Ruth D. Peterson Fellowship for Racial and Ethnic Diversity
American Society of Criminology

Kaelyn
Sanders

Kaelyn Sanders, Michigan State University, received the American Society of Criminology Ruth D. Peterson Fellowship for Racial and Ethnic Diversity

Joanne M. Kaufman, Associate Professor, University at Albany, SUNY.

Recent Publication: Kaufman, Joanne M. 2024. "The Contribution of Intimate Partner Violence to Socioeconomic Inequality Among Black, Latina, and White Women." Sociological Forum
<https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/socf.13013>

Race and Justice Journal

Deena Isom, Ph.D.

RAJ Editor

Associate Professor of African American Studies
University of South Carolina

RAJ is collaborating with Criminology and Public Policy on two special issues:

- Abolitionist Methodologies
- Du Bois Special Issue: Scheduled for release in 2026, this issue will honor and explore the contributions of W.E.B. Du Bois.

Call for Submissions: RAJ is seeking book review submissions and accepting abstracts and proposals.

Upcoming Special Issue: A special issue commemorating James Baldwin's 100th birthday is under consideration.

Active DPCC members can access the division journal Race and Justice as part of their membership! To do so, click here. Log in, then click on the "Race and Justice Journal" link on the next page. This will take you to the journal homepage, where articles are unlocked.

Resource

The Center for Victim Research (CVR) is a one-stop shop for victim service providers and researchers to connect and share knowledge. Its mission is to strengthen and grow the evidence base informing victim services nationwide. CVR is led by the Justice Information Resource Network and the Urban Institute.

DO YOU CONDUCT RESEARCH ON VICTIMIZATION AND VICTIM SERVICES? JOIN CVR'S DIRECTORY OF VICTIM RESEARCHERS!

To join the Directory, complete the form through this link or QR code:

<https://victimresearch.org/researcher-intake>

The online Directory includes hundreds of researchers that service providers and other partners can search by state, areas of focus, and expertise to find the right research partners in their community.

Joining the CVR Community Brings Numerous Benefits for Researchers

CVR visitors include victim services practitioners and researchers. They use CVR's easily accessible website and newsletter to (1) access victim research, (2) network and collaborate with partners, (3) learn about data collection and reporting in the field, and (4) explore tools to support program evaluation.

★ Increase Your Research Audience and Dissemination

CVR hosts podcasts and webinars highlighting research-and-practice partnerships, disseminates research summaries, and spotlights important victimization studies. CVR also attracts a large audience of OVC grantees and subrecipients and serves as a key channel for US Department of Justice dissemination.

★ Expand Your Research Network and Get Access to Resources

CVR hosts virtual convenings where you can share your work and connect with other researchers around the nation. CVR also houses a database of screening and assessment tools that you can search for and share validated instruments. Our open-access library contains research articles and reports, syntheses on victimization topics, and offers quick reference guides on victim research (e.g., protecting victims).

Already a member of the Researcher Directory? Sign up for our newsletter:

<https://victimresearch.org/contact/>

Position Announcements

Assistant Professor of Latina/o/x/e Studies

Priority deadline: 11. 1

Apply: bit.ly/utahlatinx

We are hiring! Our academic fields explore race and racism, ethnicity, gender, sexuality and sexual identity, disability, health and global diasporas.

Position Announcements

The Department of Criminology at Stonehill College (Easton, MA) invites applicants for two lines in Criminology to begin in July 2025. We seek applicants for an assistant/associate professor, tenure-track appointment, and for a Professor of Practice, term renewable line. Our new colleague would join a department of four full-time faculty with a wide range of disciplinary expertise and a commitment to fostering diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging in their classrooms. The department is nestled in the Martin Institute for Law & Society that provides our students with interdisciplinary learning opportunities for accomplishing Stonehill's mission of educating the whole person so that each Stonehill graduate thinks, acts, and leads with courage toward the creation of a more just and compassionate world.

Ideally, for the tenure track line, we seek applicants who are committed to excellence in teaching, advising, and mentoring undergraduates and who exemplify the teacher-scholar model with a clear understanding of how to integrate vibrant teaching, research, and student engagement. The teaching load for tenure track faculty is three courses per semester. Successful candidates will be ready and able to teach key departmental classes such as, Critical Introduction to Criminal Justice, Criminological Theories, Research Methods, or Statistics for the Criminology Department. We are particularly interested in candidates with areas of research expertise that complement existing department strengths.

Applicants should have a completed Ph.D. in criminology or criminal justice. ABD candidates will be considered based on experience and a firm schedule to finish the degree by August 2025. Qualifications must include a demonstrated excellence in undergraduate teaching. Candidates who enhance the department's diversity are particularly encouraged to apply. Interested applicants should submit online a letter of application, curriculum vitae, one example of your scholarly work, three letters of recommendation, and a teaching portfolio. The teaching portfolio should include evidence of teaching excellence and course syllabi, and a statement of teaching philosophy. In your teaching philosophy and/or cover letter, please explain how diversity is incorporated into your teaching materials and methods. Submit required documentation via the URL link: <https://jobs.stonehill.edu/>

Ideally, for the professor of practice line, we seek applicants who are committed to excellence in teaching, advising, and mentoring. The teaching load for a professor of practice is four courses per semester. Successful candidates will be ready and able to teach key departmental classes such as, Critical Introduction to Criminal Justice and Criminological Theories. We are particularly interested in candidates with areas of expertise that complement existing department strengths. Applicants would have at least a master's degree in criminology or a closely related field. Candidates with a PhD are preferred. Experience working in the criminal justice field is welcomed and will be considered. Qualifications must include a demonstrated excellence in undergraduate teaching. Candidates who enhance the department's diversity are particularly encouraged to apply. Interested applicants should submit online a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and a teaching portfolio. The teaching portfolio should include evidence of teaching excellence and course syllabi, and a statement of teaching philosophy. In your teaching philosophy and/or cover letter, please explain how diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging is incorporated into your teaching materials and methods.

Submit required documentation via the URL link: <https://jobs.stonehill.edu/> Founded by the Congregation of Holy Cross in 1948, Stonehill is a private Catholic Liberal Arts college located on a beautiful 384-acre campus in Easton, Massachusetts. With a student to faculty ratio of 13:1, the College engages its 2,400+ students in rigorous academic programs in the liberal arts, sciences, and pre-professional fields in service of an education that fosters a commitment to the common good, prepares students for responsible citizenship in their local and global communities, and inspires students to pursue rewarding professional lives. Stonehill College's mission includes a commitment to fostering social justice, enhancing diversity, and pursuing intellectual inquiry. The application deadline is October 18, 2024. Please email inquiries to Dr. Kathleen Currul-Dykeman

Position Announcements

San Jose State University (SJSU) Department of Justice Studies invites applications for a tenure-track (assistant professor) position in the forensic science program to begin in August 2025. The Department offers forensic science as part of a vibrant interdisciplinary array of programs including criminology, legal studies and human rights. When the program began in 2003, with concentrations in FS-Biology and FS-Chemistry, SJSU became the first university in the California State University to offer forensic science. Since then, the program has expanded with concentrations in FS-Digital Evidence (Spring 2021) and FS-Crime Scene Investigation (Spring 2023). We seek candidates who possess the ability to effectively teach and develop curricula in general forensic science courses, including crime scene investigative practices and techniques with preferred expertise in the area of analytical chemistry or digital/computer forensics. We highly encourage candidates whose research specializes in any of the following areas including, but not limited to, analytical/drug chemistry, forensic toxicology, instrumental chemistry, digital/computer crimes, computer science, or cybercrime.

The Department of Justice Studies is part of the College of Social Sciences, which is committed to equitable and inclusive teaching and learning. The College sees faculty and student success as inextricably linked, and strives to provide culturally-sustaining, and academically-affirming approaches to supporting and engaging students and faculty. We provide opportunities for faculty development around asset-based, holistic student success, and support scholarship of engagement that addresses issues that affect our campus and community. In all of our endeavors, we strive to build leadership capacity and foster a culture of support and belonging for faculty, staff, and students.

The Department of Justice Studies (<https://www.sjsu.edu/justicestudies/>) and San José State University value diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging. Our excellence in research, teaching, and service can only be fully realized by faculty, students, and staff who share our commitment to these values. SJSU enrolls more than 36,000 students, many of whom are historically underserved, and around 45% are first-generation and 38% are Pell-recipients. SJSU is a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander (AANAPISI) Serving Institution. The university's commitment to social justice extends from its vibrant, inclusive campus to an international network of over 275,000 alumni. As such, San José State is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty so our disciplines, students, and the community can benefit from multiple ethnic and gender perspectives.

Successful candidates will demonstrate evidence of a commitment to equity and inclusion through their research, teaching, and/or service. We ask that all applicants include a Diversity Statement with their application package. A guide to writing this statement can be found at SJSU Diversity Statement Guidelines, along with information about how these statements will be evaluated.

Find more information about the position here.

Inquiries may be directed to the Department Chair: Paul Knepper, paul.knepper@sjsu.edu

Position Announcements

NIJ is now accepting applications for the Research Assistantship Program.

2025 - 2026 Academic Year

The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Research Assistantship Program (RAP) offers highly qualified doctoral students the opportunity to bring their expertise to NIJ to work across offices and program areas to obtain practical and applied research experience. The RAP is a research-focused professional development opportunity for doctoral students. We welcome students from all backgrounds and academic disciplines who wish to connect their research to the criminal justice field. This unique assistantship is an opportunity to learn and contribute to the breadth and depth of science research in which NIJ engages. NIJ funds participating universities to pay salaries and other costs associated with research assistants who work on NIJ research activities.

The submission deadline is 11:59 p.m. ET, January 20, 2025.

See Applying for an NIJ Research Assistantship.

November 2024

<https://ascdpcc.org/>

Position Announcements

The Department of Sociology and Criminology & Law at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-accruing position at the rank of Assistant Professor with research and teaching interests related to data science in crime, law and justice beginning August 16, 2025. This position is part of the UF Artificial Intelligence initiative (<https://ai.ufl.edu/>), and the new hire would join a concentration of faculty in the department and university using data science in their research and teaching. The salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience and includes a full benefits package.

Data science in criminology is the use of data analytics to solve problems, make decisions, and prevent crime. It typically involves computational analysis of “big data” in its various forms, including numeric, textual, image, and video data. Computational methods may include natural language processing/text mining, machine learning (ML) algorithms, predictive risk modeling (PRM), agent based modeling, and social network analysis/network science.

Examples of data science research can span the fields of law enforcement, corrections, legal studies, and psychology and the law. For example, scholars might analyze government administrative data (e.g., 311 or 911 calls, crime reports, or GPS data) to identify potential suspects, crimes, and crime patterns; use digital forensic analysis to assist in criminal investigations; employ algorithms to model the likelihood of criminal offending and recidivism; or utilize language models to assess case law or statutes to improve legal decision-making. Researchers may partner with criminal justice and other community agencies to examine and help mitigate against potential harms associated with the collection or analysis of these data (e.g., lack of privacy, oversurveillance, bias/discrimination of minoritized or oppressed populations, etc.) and to inform policies and practices that will improve public safety (e.g., analyzing data from police body worn cameras to identify best practices for de-escalation and non-escalation during police/citizen interactions).

Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Criminology, Criminal Justice, Sociology, or a relevant social science field (by the date of hire).

Strong research experience in data science related to crime, law, and criminal justice.

Demonstrated commitment to rigorous scholarship with the promise of external funding.

Ability to contribute significantly to graduate education and mentoring.

Excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Ability to contribute to a diverse and inclusive environment through scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and professional service.

The Department of Sociology and Criminology & Law is a large and dynamic department with over 600 undergraduate Criminology majors and roughly 20 Criminology, Law and Society graduate students. The Department has two undergraduate programs, both offered via in-person and online courses, and new minors in Sociology of Social Justice & Policy and Environmental Justice & Policy. Faculty conduct research in diverse areas, including criminology and criminal justice; psychology and law; families and gender; health, aging, and the life course; environment and resources; and race and ethnicity. Many faculty are affiliated with other academic programs at UF, including the School of Natural Resources and the Environment, the Center for Latin American Studies, the Center for European Studies, the Department of Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies, and the Health Science Center. More information about the Department is available at <https://soccrim.clas.ufl.edu/>, including biographical information about our faculty, students, and staff; and a description of the various projects and research interests in which our members are involved.

For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at jobs.ufl.edu, search job 533584.

Applications will be reviewed beginning November 25, 2024, and the position will remain open until filled.

Only complete applications will be reviewed at this time. Applications received after this date may be considered at the discretion of the committee and/or hiring authority.

Position Announcements

The Department of Justice Studies at Prairie View A&M University invites applications for a nine-month, tenured Associate Professor position to begin Fall 2025. While the area of specialization is open for this search, the College of Juvenile Justice anticipates starting a Master of Public Policy program. Therefore, preference will be given to applicants who have a substantive strength in public policy, justice policy, social policy, etc. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Criminology, Juvenile Justice, Public Policy, or a closely related field. Applicants with only a J.D. degree will not be considered.

Job Qualifications and Duties

- Have an established scholarly record appropriate for a tenured associate professor at a Carnegie R2 (high research) university
- Have an active record of scholarship in areas related to public policy
- Make original contributions to the advancement of knowledge through scholarly publications and presentations.
- Have a record of seeking and/or obtaining external funding
- Have a record of excellent teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels
- Plan, prepare, and teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels
- Assess student performance, provide timely feedback, and evaluate student learning outcomes to inform teaching practices and curriculum improvements.
- Engage in ongoing professional development activities to stay current in the field, improve teaching skills, and explore new instructional strategies.
- Collaborate with colleagues to coordinate course offerings and contribute to program development and improvement.
- Mentor doctoral students
- Participate in institutional service roles including department/college/university committees

Founded in 1876, Prairie View A&M University is the nation's third largest Historically Black College & University (HBCU), located 45 miles northwest of Houston, Texas, the nation's fourth largest city. The university is among the United States' top producer of African American architects and engineers and boasts several nationally recognized academic and research programs. In 2022, Prairie View became an R2 Carnegie research institution; one of only 11 HBCUs with said designation. This year, the university introduced its new 10-year strategic plan, Journey to Eminence 2035, which promises to build on its historic legacy to become a premier, public research-intensive HBCU that serves as a national model for student success.

The College of Juvenile Justice houses the Department of Justice Studies and the Texas Juvenile Crime Prevention Center. The College is committed to excellence in research, education, training, prevention, and service. Additionally, with the recent appointment of a new dean, the College is focusing on growing enrollment, its academic portfolio, and increasing its impact. The College is looking to add additional programs, including a graduate degree in public policy to begin Fall 2025.

The Department of Justice Studies offers coursework leading to a Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice, a Bachelor of Science degree in Juvenile Justice (optional concentrations in policing, corrections, legal studies, and criminalistics), a Master of Science degree in Juvenile Justice, and a Ph.D. degree in Juvenile Justice. The faculty are among the leading scholars in juvenile justice, criminal justice, race and crime, international issues with justice, and justice policy.

To apply for this position, please visit our website at: <https://tinyurl.com/28k9cbvv>
Applications will be reviewed on 11/15/24 and remain open until filled.

Applicants will be required to submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, unofficial transcripts, research statement, teaching philosophy, and the names of at least three references to be fully considered.

Questions should be directed to the department chair, Dr. Myrna Cintron, at mycintron@pvamu.edu.

1

Network: Bring business cards or have a digital card ready for networking.

2

Prepare a 30-second elevator pitch about your research or current projects. Let folks know that you are on the job market.

3

Review the schedule for DPCC-sponsored sessions and, stop by the DPCC table to pick up some swag!

4

Dress in layers—conference rooms can vary in temperature...bring your snacks!

10

Explore the city: Check out the San Francisco travel guide to make the most of your visit.

9

Download the 2024 ASC Annual Meeting app. Find more info here.

8

Follow and tag @ASCCRIM41, @ASCDPCC, and #ASCsanFran2024 on social media.

7

Identify key speakers or sessions you don't want to miss and set reminders; prepare questions in advance.

6

Something different: Consider attending sessions outside of your primary research area for inspiration.

10

Tips for the Annual Meeting

5

Protect your peace: Remember to take breaks to recharge—don't overbook yourself and plan for downtime to reflect on sessions and discussions.

To include job postings, publications, awards and accomplishments, new appointments, events, calls for papers, or other updates in the DPCC newsletter, please complete the submission form here: DPCC Newsletter Submission Form.

For questions, contact us at ascdpcc95@gmail.com.